Detective Criticizes, Then Gets Rebuked

Attempts to recruit military personnel in a movement to overthrow the establishment were described by a Seaside detective last week, then rebuked by a Legal aid attorney.

One objective of the "movement" in the Seaside-Monterey area is to neutralize and disrupt Fort Ord as an effective Army training facility," detective Terry Mangan told the House Internal Security Committee.

Detective Mangan is a community relations officer for the department, and he described the movement as a "loosely knit coalition of individuals and organizations dedicated to ending American involvement in Southeast Asia, overthrowing the establishment and changins society.

Mangan said the most dorminant group since March 1970, is the movement for a Democratic Military which he described as a "rainbow" organization with leadership cadre composed equally of cadre composed equally of various racial groups.

Three of the changing cadre, said Mangan were active armed forces enlisted men. He also said between March and October 1970, the movement operated a coffee house in downtown Monterey where GIs were invited to nightly meetings and weekend showings of revolutionary films.

The detective said that the meovement concentrated recruiting efforts and distribution of underground newspapers in the Special Processing Detachment compound at Fort Ord, giving instructions in resisting orders, filing complaints against officers and claiming conscientious objector status.

The movement, he said, was known to possess a dozen shotguns, rifles and carbines and a number of pistols.

He said there was an unconfirmed report that the group also had an M 16 automatic weapon from Fort Ord. Several other weapons were reported taken from Fort Ord, according the detective, between August and December of 1970.

Week noght meeting at the coffee house reportedly drew from 10-20 active GIs and weekend programs 10-40. weekend programs 10-40. Mangan said the Monterey office of the Pacific Counsealing Service was a hub for distribution of underground newspapers in the area, some of them smuggled in bundles onto the Fort Ord base.

Mangan also said some attorneys were offering draft and general counseling services to GIs, and were connected with the Monterey County Legal Aid office funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., said the OEO would be notified.

At a House International Security Committee meeting, Mangan's charges were called absurd, inaccurate or outdated by spokesmen for two groups he mentioned by name.

The reactions came from Steve Slatkow, a staff attorney for the Legal Aid Society of Monterey County, and Rick Arnitz, a military counselor with the Pacific Counseling Service office in Monterey.

To the above claims, Slatkow called Mangans testimony just another example of the establishment attacking innuendo attorneys that represent those who are part of one or another type of minorities, as well as those who attempt to rise above all types of oppression."

Slatkow said the legal aid office gives advice on legal problems to anyone who qualifies for its services, whether he be a welfare recipient, a tenant or a soldier.

He also said the office does little in the way of counseling GIs because of the availability of the Pacific Counseling Service.

He added that there was no informal relationship between the two offices.

"Movement for a democratic Military," said Slatkow no longer exists and that he suspected that a statement by Mangan that the group possessed a number of weapons "was fabricated and unture."

Rick Arnitz, another legal aid attorney, said that Mangan's statements before the committee tended to be "dated and absurd" and have nothing to do with the PCS.

Notice Special

There appeared in the Seaside POST and News-Sentinel issue of October 21, 1971, in Betty Mann's column--Grooving Around the Peninsula -- a letter from Oliver Murray, former Seaside City councilman. The letter from Oliver Murray contained certain references about Saul Weingarten, former attorney for the city of Seaside. The references contained therein regarding Saul Weingarten were solely the opinions of Oliver Murray and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the editor, Andrew Barragan or the publisher, Monterey Publishing Company, Inc., of the Seaside POST and News-Sentinel, who have no direct knowledge as to the trugh or falsity of the opinions expressed by Oliver Murray.

PAY ATTENTION - "Listen To Your Body" is theme of new American Cancer Society poster which is being distributed in recognition of Cancer Education Week. Admiring it are (from left) Reverend G. E. Ellis, American Cancer Society's Seaside education chairman; Linda Lee Bassett, Seaside mother, business woman and member of board of Monterey Peninsula Unified School District and Mrs. Pat Sloane, president of Monterey Peninsula PTA Council and nurse at Community Hospital. Tomorrow night, Rev. Ellis will preside over cancer education meeting at Family Planning Clinic, 1123 Fremont Boulevard. Featuring displays, short films and question and answer period, meeting is open to public.

New Shopping Center Will Be Developed Here

The Seaside city council, at its last regular meeting, approved unanimously a land disposition agreement for a shopping center in the Laguna Grande redevelopment project.

At the same time, the council set itself up as the city parking authority and announced plans to develop a 751 -space public parking lot adjacent to the proposed center. The lot will be built with proceeds from tax revenues accruing from the center.

Located on 12.2 acres between the Highway 1 freeway and Del Monte Boulevard, the shopping center will be developed by a Beverly Hills real estate firm--Stotter & Caplow. In order to accomedate the parking lot, Canyon Del Rey Boulevard will be realigned and shifted slightly to the west.

Under the agreement, the developers will submit a deposity of $200,000 by January 1 toward the total maximum land price of $700,000. The final price is to be determined by appraisals.

In other action, the council introduced an ordinance for annexation of the freeway right -of-way from the present limit north to an extension of first Street in Fort Ord.

A resolution was adopted which asks the federal government to convert the Gateway and Del Monte Heights redevelopment project to neighborhood development programs, financed under annual budgets. Presently they are under long-term loan and grand financing. This is expected to save approximately $100,000 in annual interest payments.

The council designated Finance Director Ralph Scholink as city treasurer. He replaces the former treasurer who was an employee of a local bank that was transferred out ot the city.

The council also guaranteed $10,000 in public funds toward the non-federal one-quarter share of $62,000 for rebuilding the Seaside Youth Center. A community-wide fund drive to raise the $10,000 is planned. They also agreed to provide the Monterey Peninsula Antipoverty Council with rent-free office space for another year. The agency's area service center now occupies the former city hall at 1580 Del Monte Boulevard.

United Fund Gets Boost

The Monterey Peninsula United Fund drive received some good new from the county's Combined Federal Compaign this week with word that the Army and Navy were meeting with good success in their separate efforts to raise funds.

United Fund formerly known as the community chest, receives 36 percent of the Combined Federal Compaign, a separate fund drive being tried for the first time this year.

The Army campaign, under the aegis of Fort Ord Commander, Major General H. G. Moore and Project Officer, Colonel A. J. Sabel, is completed and the final accounting was $102,000, raised primarily at Ord and the Defense Language Institute.

The Navy has not yet finished its drive, but has passed $20,000 mark of a projectdd $50,000 goal, according to Project Officer, Commandor Ernest Fischbein.

Don Ask is project officer for federal civilian employees mainly postal workers and this drive has just commenced so ther was no report.

In addition to United Fund, the Combined Federal Campaign contributes to the National Health Agencies, Red Cross and International Service Agencies.

The portion contributed to United Fund is spent entirely on the Peninsula. UF helps support 15 local services.

The United Fund campaign continues through November. Persons interested in contributing or helping in the drive should contact the Fund offices at 807 Cass Street, Monterey, phone number 372-8026.

Program Makes Auto Loans Easier

The Bank of America has announced that it has developed a special card for automobile purchases which it is initially offering to 200,000 preferred customers.

Called the Preferred Auto Rate Card, it will allow the bearer to finance a new car purchase at a preferred rate and without the red tape of filling out a long loan application.

Here's how the new program will work:

Once the car has been selected, the card which bears the holder's name, and signature need only be presented to any of the bank's branches or to the auto dealer.

The program is designed to encourage new car purchases. "We believe that increased automobile production will have a stimulating effect on the national economy and that the greatly improved pollution controls of new cars will materially aid the war against air pollution," said A. R. Zipf, Bank of America executive vice president.

The program, he said, is part of the bank's ongoing effort to stimulate new car sales. Currently one out of every five new automobile purchases in California in financed by Bank of America.

Suits Are Filed Against Billboards

Law suits seeking injunctions against approximately 500 billboards located adjacent to state highways in 45 counties and in violation of state law were filed recently by the Legal Division of the State Department of Public Works

In 1967 the California Legislature enacted statutes that regulate the placement and location of outdoor advertising displays adjacent to state highways. Called the "Outdoor Advertising Act," the statute was required to serve as enabling legislation to the Federal Highway Beautification Act of 1965.

The state law requires that all outdoor displays installed after October 22, 1965 and before October 7, 1967 which do not conform be removed by July 1, 1971.

An inventory conducted in November 1967 showed that approximately 800 signs had been installed during the two year period. Since that time, 300 have been removed by their owners. The owners of the approximate 500 still in place have been removed by their owners. The owners of the approximate 500 still in place have refused to comply with the outdoor advertising act and are subjects of the injunctions sought.

Legal Division attorneys said that many billboard companies as well as individual owners will be affected by the approximate 150 suits that will be filed on a statewide basis.

In Sacramento County for example, nine suits involving 208 non-conforming installations will be filed. Owners of the signs include Foster & Kleiser, National Advertising Company, Ryan Outdoor Advertising, Melvin Genser Outdoor, and Desert Outdoor Ad-

No offending boards are located in Alpine, Contra Costa, Marin, Merced, Monterey, Napa San Benito, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, Sierra and Yolo counties.

Deadline Is Near

The California State Scholarship and Loan Commission wishes to remind high school seniors and college students that the postmark deadline date for the filing of California State Scholarship applications is November 19, 1971.

Nine thousand six hundred new scholarships for undergraduate college students are to be awarded by the Commission in April 1972. Students who believe they are in need of financial assistance for tuition and fees at the colleges of their choice and who have already taken the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Entrance Examination Board may secure application forms from their schools or the Commission offices in Sacramento.

Welcome Sign in Unemployment Rate

Figures issued recently by the Reagan Administration show California's unemployment rate dropped to 7.0 percent in October, from 7.1 percent in September. The figure was 7.2 percent in October last year.

Sigurd L. Hansen, director of the State Department of Human Resources Development, said this was the first time since July, 1969, that the unemployment rate was below the figure for the same month the previous year.

Hansen also noted that the number of persons unemployed declined by 24,000 between September and October, from 513,000 to 489,000. Compared with the same month last year, he added, unemployment was down by 19,000.

"With both the unemployment rate and the number of persons unemployed now below the figures for a year ago," Hansen said, "I believe this may be an indication that the upward trend has been stopped.

"Month-to -month figures may fluctuate because of variations connected with strikes and other unforeseen factors," said Hansen. "The 12-month figures offer us a better comparison and this month, for the first time since July, 1969, the rate is down and the numbers of persons unemployed is down, compared with the same month last year."

Hansen noted that the civilian labor force (considting of the employed and the unemployed seeking work) totaled 8,618,800 in October, compared with 8,640,900 in October 1970. Total civilian employment was 8, 129, 800, compared with 8, 132,900 in the same month last year.

Largest 12-month declines occurred in manufacturing, Hansen said, with job losses in the aerospace group accounting for the buld of the decrease.

"But the aerospace complex has turned around in recent months," Hansen said, "with an additional 2,300 employed in October, 1,300 in September and 2,400 in August."

Total aerospace employment is now 439,900, Hansen added.

Civil Service Jobs Open

The San Francisco Area Office, U. S. Civil Service Commission has issued a new announcement for the positions of BOILERMAKER AND BOILER-MAKER (LIMITED), No. FR-1-09. This announcement has been issued in order to fill immediate vacancies in the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard, San Francisco. Applications received before November 18, 1971, will be rated and given first consideration in filling these vacancies. Other eligibles will be rated and considered for filling future needs in the San Francisco Bay Area as they arise.

Starting salaries for these positions will be $4.41 and $4.75 per hour depending on the experience and/or education of the applicant.

Information and application forms may be secured from the Personnel Office of most large Federal installations or at the Federal Job Information Center at 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California, 94102, telephone (415) 556-6667.

Road Work Will Begin

Bids were opened this week in Sacramento for a major State highway improvement on Route 101 at Boronda Road near the north city limits of Salinas. The apparent low bidder was the Freeman-Sondgroth Construction Co. of Mountain View. Their offer of $573,168.75 was the lowest of seven bids and topped the engineer's estimate by just three percent.

The work consists of building on-and off-ramps to the existing Boronda Road Overcrossing. The bridges over Little Bear Creed will be widened. An additional freeway lane for each direction of travel will be added at the northerly end of the project to conform with future freeway construction. A portion of Boronda Road will be reconstructed and widened.

Construction of a large shopping center at Boronda Road will be completed some time in 1972. The interchange is needed to provide adequate traffic service to the shopping area and to other future development.

Ninety working days are allotted for the project. It should be completed by the summer of 1972.

Last Saturday my wife, Jeannie and I went over to visit a very dear lady friend of ours who lives out on Paradise Valley Road. Right in the middle of what I thought was a very pleasant discussion, she started to bawl me out for some of the things I have been writing. "How can you," she asked, "in one paragraph quote the beauty and love of a Kahlil Gibran and, in the next, condemn something or other? You simply blaspheme the truth and beauty of the great teaching of this famous Prophet with the little barbs that you put into your column."

I tried to protest that the only reason I put in those so-called barbs, as she described them, was to try to get a point across concerning some injustice which I think exists in our city or state of nation. I explained that I was only trying to educate people by awakening them to this or that particular injustice that may exist in their lives.

Then she said to me, "yes, Andy, that is what you think you are doing, but what you, of all people, who espouses the teachings of Gibran and who claims to be an advocate of positive thinking and the use of a higher power, are really doing by pointing out these injustices that you claim exist, is to give them more power by your very repitition of them. It is not for you to play God. It is up to you, who has so much knowledge of truth and love and beauty to teach truth and discontinue the use of barbs to condemn other prople or situations."

There was no need for me to protest because, even though I was shook up, I knew that

with BETTY MANN

There appeared in the Seaside POST and News-Sentinel issue of October 21, 1971, in Betty Mann's column--Grooving Around the Peninsula -- a letter from Oliver Murray, former Seaside City councilman. The letter from Oliver Murray contained certain references about Saul Weingarten, former attorney for the city of Seaside. The references contained therein regarding Saul Weingarten were solely the opinions of Oliver Murray and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the editor, Andrew Barragan or the publisher, Monterey Publishing Company, Inc., of the Seaside POST and News-Sentinel, who have no direct knowledge as to the trugh or falsity of the opinions expressed by Oliver Murray.

Hi There, Fellow Peninsulans,

This week I want to devote the colum to some very hopeful information about what once was a very hopeless subject: cancer of the uterus (womb). And I'd like to tell this story through the words of Dr. Helen O. Dickens, a nationally-known gynecologist who was recently named a distinguished daughter of Pennsylvania by the governor of that state for being the first black woman to be made a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Dickens wrote an article, "New Hope for Women in the Fight Against Cancer," which was published recently in "New Lady" magazine. The American Cancer Society has reprinted this outstanding woman's words, and copies of the full text will be available free at a meeting tomorrow night (Friday), which the Society is sponsoring in recognition of Cancer Education Week. This meeting, open to all, will be held on the premises of the Family Planning Clinic at 1123 Fremont bolevard, starting at 7 p.m. Every-one is invited to attend . Short films will be shown and a doctor will be there to answer questions.

The purpose of the meeting will be to sort out the myths from the facts about cancer. Did you know that much cancer is curable and that one of its worst forms--lung cancer--can be prevented from happening at all?

Now back to Dr. Dickens! Here are some quotes from he article:

"As we enter the decade of the 70's a new generation of women can, for the first time in history, throw off the age-old dread of uterine cancer. . . When I was a medical student, a diagnosis of cancer of this site was a virtual death sentence.

"Today, nobody has to die of uterine cancer. Most of the deaths that do occur are due largely to fear, ignorance, poverty, neglect. These are social factors that can and must be rooted out by social action. Many members of the medical profession agree that cancer control has become a public health problem.

"In the last twenty-five years, cure rates for uterine cancer have climbed a dramatic 38 percent. The improvement was most striking among black women in the late 1960's. Less than 50 years ago the black death rate from cancer of this site was double that of white women. Were blacks more prone to such cancer than whites? The scientific answer is no. For, with the opening up of educational and economic opportunities, the death rate from cancer of the uterus has, in the last few years, decreased proportionately more for black than for white women. Today the decrease is running parallel . . . .

"If every woman in America had a Pap test and through pelvic examination every year, uterine cancer could be eliminated as a major cause of cancer deaths within this generation. That is the opportunity and challenge for black women who, for too many years, were deprived of the educational, economic and social opportunity to avail themselves of medical advances. . .

"One of the tasks of the American Cancer Society is bringing life-saving facts about cancer--all kinds of cancer-- to people. In that ongoing effort there is room and need for more participation by black women to help spread the word about this disease.

"I hope that high school girls and college women will give serious consideration to preparing for medical careers or for one of the many rewarding careers in the allied health fields. . .

"For the first time in U.S. history, the doors have inched open for women students and color is no barrier. For black women everywhere, service in the health fields offers the chance for a new, gratifying life experience.

"Curiously, now that the anti-woman prejudice is diminishing medicine, the number of white women in the field is generally decreasing; black women, however, are increasingly entering the medical profession. . .

"In the field of uterine cancer alone, there is a desperate need for medical technologists, cyto-technicians, cytologists, persons trained to assist in taking the Pap test, in preparing slides for microscopic examination and in discriminating between positive and negative slides. Women are needed also, in community education on uterine cancer control. The public must be motivated to watch out for warning signals, to visit a clinic or their own physician at the first sign of irregularity; and also to have yearly cancer protection checkups. . .

"It is up to the new generation of black women to protect themselves and their families by exploring neighborhood facilities, joining with the American Cancer Society's effort to reach the hard - core victims of cancer, those deprived by poverty and ignorance of the new knowledge that many cancers can be cured and even prevented.

"Remember, the first equality without which no other ewuality matters, is equal opportunity to life and health. Enlarge these opportunities for the black women of America by joining the ACS, by increasing black participation as professional workers in the health field and above all by taking every measure you personally can to fight back against cancer.

Goodwill Is Facing Two Costly Developments

Goodwill Industries, dependent on donations of discards from the public, is confronted with two costly new kevelopments that reflect the problems of our times.

The nonprofit organization is being swamped with materials which can't be used or repaired and now has an annual cost of more than $62,000 for cleanup and disposal as a result, according to Mrs. June Dreadin, manager of the Goodwill Retail Store in Seaside.

At the same time, theft and vandalism and the dumping of garbage and trash is accelerating at the yellow collection boxes which Goodwill has located on parking lots and in other public places.

Nothing should ever be left outside the boxes, Mrs. Dreadin said. Any time a person has donations too large or abdant to place inside the box, they should call the store at 394-1212 for free truck pick up service at their home or business, she urged.

"Thieves often get away with the good donations before our trucks arrive at the boxes," she explained, "and all they leave behind is an unsightly and, to us costly mess."

Mrs. Dreadin asked that any citizen who sees a box theft taking place promptly call local law officials so that on-the-spot apprehension is possible. "This may be the only way we can stop these crimes against the handicapped poor."

As for the nonuseable donations, Mrs. Dreadin said that the $62,000 is almost one fifth of what the independent district, serving Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Luis Obispo counties, will be paying to its handicapped workers and trainees this year.

Goodwill Industries provides rehabilitation and vocational services for persons with physical, mental, emotional and social handicaps. Their programs center around restoring and reselling donated articles.

Mrs. Dreadin urged that any one who questions whether or not a donation may be suitable for Goodwill contact her store. "If we can't tell on the phone, we'll be glad to send someone to their home or business to take a look," she said. "We are entering a slow season for donations and our handicapped people need them badly," she added.

Goodwill estimates it could save up to 50 percent of its costs for transporting, sorting and paying of public dump fees just by eliminating the following:

Rusty, weather beaten stoves, heaters, refrigerators and freezers, and those without motors or major parts; badly torn, worn, stained upholstered furniture, mattresses and box springs and those with broken springs or water or smoke damage or wet; open coil bed springs and water heaters; old fashioned laundry skins; bath tubs and toilets; newspapers or magazines (except National Geographic); bottles and cans; automobile tires, tubes and parts.

Major O'Day Is Retiring

Four years of dashing to the aid or rescue of servicemen and their families are coming to an end for one of Ft. Ord's best known officers. Major Shirley L. O'Day, Army Community Services officer, will retire the end of this month.

Since July 1967 she has been friendly neighbor, good Samaritan and a source of help to the entire Ft. Ord. community.

To bid her farewell, the ACS volunteers recently entertained at a pot luck luncheon. Honored guests were Major O'Day's mother, Mrs. Carol O'Day of Honolulu; Mrs. H.G. Moore, wife of Ft. Ord's commanding general and Mrs. William L. Webb, wife of the deputy commanding general.

After the feast, Mayor C' Day was presented with the Army Commendation Medal for her achievements at Fort Ord as ACS officer, Army Emergency Relief officer, Women's Army Corpos advisor, schools officer and post American Red Cross blood project officer.

Colonel J. W. Norwalk, in presenting the award, praised Major O'Day for a most outstanding job and told her how greatly she would be missed at Ft. Ord. She has initiated and developed many programs, including an award-winning volunteer program, a highly successful Christmas program for children, an orientation program for newly arrived families, a loan closet to provide new families with household furnishings until their own arrive, a child abuse council, the community social survey, a food stamps program and the neighborhood councils.

The ACS volunteers presented Major O'Day with a gift and the "Volunteer's Seal of Approval." Major O'Day praised the volunteers for their contributions. "Without the volunteers, there would be no ACS program," she said.

THROUGH THE AGES

Myths and legends, handed down by word of mouth before men knew how to write, told about beer. Mead, which mythology says was the food of the gods of ancient Greece, was a brew of grain, honey and water.

Attica Criticized By Black Officers

Black correctional officers in the state of New York say it is a mistake for their state to move in the direction of tighter security instead of tighter security instead of the Attica revolt and massacre which took place in September.

What is needed, they say, are more Black and Puerto Rican guards who can identify with inmates and with whom inmates can identify.

In the 14 New York State prisons, nonwhites now account for only 2.7 percent of all staff while whites hold 93.8 percent of all jobs in the department.

At Attica, there is only one guard who is not a white Anglo. Yet the inmate population is reportedly 56 percent Black and 12 percent Puerto Rican.

More than half of New York's 2.7 percent of minority penal officers are concentrated in two institutions--the state prison at Ossining and the women's prison at Bedford Hills. The highest-ranking official is a woman deputy superintendent at Bedford Hills prison for women. Only two Black men hold supervisory posts, a sergeant and a lieutenant.

WAR - LIKE

"The people making the decisions think there's a war on," said Squire Simpson, an officer for seven years at the state prison at Ossining and a former Green Beret.

"To our way of thinking, the war is in their minds," he said. "We as Black officers have to keep them from making it into a full-fledged war. We're like the French underground under the Nazis."

The Black officers make a comparison with New York comparison with New York City's Department of Corrections, where Blacks and Puerto Ricans hold nearly half of the staff positions.

Black officers say the number of Blacks was kept down at Ossining by white supervisors who said they did not want "too many New York City men," a euphemism for too many Blacks."

For every 10 Black officers they have hired in the past 10 years, they have fired four on probation, according to one officer at Ossining.

PRESENCE HELPS

Black officers say thay their mere presence helps to avoid confronations between staff and inmates.

"We were told more than once by Black inmates at Ossining," said an officer there of nine years standing, "If it wasn't for you, this place would have gone up." We really believe that if they had Black officers at Attica, it never would have happened." Their ability to identify with the Black inmates and to speak the same city argot helps them recognize hyperbole and what it tries to convey, say the Black officers.

The Black officers said said they felt the Attica uprising should have been put down the first day, with clubs and tear gas, and that the decision to call in the stat decision to call in the state police virtually guaranteed a bloodbath.

They would have been willing, they said, to go into the prisoner rebellion with clubs.

Officer Simpson said, "We are correction officers. We are peace officers. It was up to corectional officers to quell it."

When he heard over the radio that Attica was being stormed, Simpson was in a recreation room at Ossining, surrounded by Black inmates.

"My feeling was that they he said. "I was identifying with the Black cats being uhot."

"I felt ver disgusted myself," said another officer. "This whole system is like a drug addict that needs detoxification."

ORGANIZING

Some of the 120 Black officers at Ossining belong to an organization called the Brotherhood of New York State Correction Officers. Until now, the group has been loosely organized and has never sought to recruit Black officers at other institutions or to speak to the department in behalf of all of the Black officers in the state.

Efforts may now be under way, in the aftermath of Attica, to organize Black officers across the state, to end the isolation of such men as Lieutenant David Harris, the only Black officer at West Coxsackie State Prison.

Since Attica, he says he can feel a question hanging in the air when he is among white officers:

"Whose side are you on? Are you on our side or the inmates' side?"

This has convinced him that Black officers are needed more than ever as "a leveling influence," he said.

SMALL INCREASE

Over the last 20 years, the cost of housing increased 54.1%; transportation, 74.6%; and the cost of medical care, 114.4%. Food prices increased only 38.8% since 1951.

what she was saying was true. I know that you don't change anything by condemning it. All you are doing is taking out your own resentment and creating more resentment in others when you keep repeating that condemnation. And, in so doing, you are only giving that much more power to the very thing you are trying to stop. I didn't have to tell myself that the Great Teachings tell us to "Love our neighbor as thyself," "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." I have been preaching these truths in this column since the day I began. I know from personal experience that God and the Love of God can do anything - if you will but believe it. I know that a "Higher Power" pulled me out of the very jaws of death two years ago when I had a massive heart attack. And again just a very few months ago when I had a recurrence. Today I am completely healthy and the doctors have told me I can live an active normal life without any kind of medication or diet. So, I of all people should know that power. Yet here I was, listening to this dressing down by my friend without any excuse for my words of condemnation.

You can bet that after I left her house I had a very soul-searching talk with myself and I vowed to do what I thought I was doing all of the time. I promised myself that I would try to make people aware of themselves and of the power that exists in each and everyone of us. And I promised I would try to bring that message to others by example and by the teaching of love. I have had to sit down and bless all of those people and situations which I have in the past condemned. I have had to examine each situation and try to see some good in it. It is not easy to get over prejudices and resentments that you have been nursing along for many years, but you must and I must get over them if we want good things to begin happening in our lives. And the place for me to begin was today in this very column. Mary, this week I can quote Gibran with a clear conscience:

"Know your own true worth, and you shall not perish. Reason is your light and your beacon of Truth. Reason is the source of Life. God has given you knowledge, so that by its light you may not only worship him, but also see yourself in your weakness and strength."

"If you do not decry the mote in your own eye, surely you will not see it in your neighbor's."

"Each day look into your conscience and amend your faults; if you fail in this duty you will be untrue to the Knowledge and Reason that are within you."

"Keep a watchful eye over yourself as if you were your own enemy, for you can not learn to govern yourself, unless you first learn to govern your own passions and obey the dictates of your conscience."

So be it. I learned something today.

Questions & Answers

Q -- I am a veteran of World War II who has just reached his 65th birthday. Am I entitled to a VA pension?

A -- You may be eligible provided your income fron all sources does not exceed $2,300 a year if you are single, or $3,500 a year if you have dependents.

Q -- Can an eligible veteran buy used mobile homes?

A -- Yes, provided the used mobile home is the security for a loan previously made or guaranteed by VA, or for a loan guaranteed, insured or made by another Federal Agency, However, present VA regulations provide only for loans on new mobile homes.

Q -- Is the educational allowance I receive under the G.I. Bil taxable?

A -- No. The Internal Revenue Service does not consider this benefit taxable income.

Q -- Some years ago, VA denied my claim for a disability pension and now I am becoming progressively worse. What can I do to have my claim re-considered?

A -- Submit to the VA office which studied your claim, or the one nearest you if you have moved, a statement from your doctor as to the current status of your disability.

Q -- Two years ago, I was studying under the G.I. Bill, but dropped out at the end of the semester. I now plan to enroll in the same school and program. How can I start my education benefits again?

A -- Notify the school to submit a re-enrollment certification to VA. This will start your benefits again, provided the school and program are currently approved, and you have not exhausted your entitlement.

Q -- Are widows of World War II veterans who died of active duty or from service-connected disabilities still eligible for G.I. home loans?

A -- Yes. A recent law revived unused, expired entitlement for unremarried widows of WW II veterans as well as for veterans themselves.

Q -- Who is eligible for a mobile home loan?

A -- Veterans and eligible widows of World War II, Koream Conflict, Post Korean Conflict, Vietnam Era; wives of servicemen missing in action or captured for more than 90 days; and servicemen who have served at least 181 days of active duty.

Q -- I plan to travel during the coming months and will not have a mailing address to receive my compensation check. What can I do about this?

A -- VA will send your check to your bank for deposit if you submit a VA change-of-address form or a letter over your signature. You should also obtain two power-of-attorney forms from VA, one to give your bank as evidence of its right to receive and deposit the checks to your account, and the other to be retained by you.

Q -- I hear that I won't get any dividends if I convert my term GI insurance to a Modified Life Plan. Is that ture?

A -- Not true. At present, dividens are paid on Modified Life policies. They would be smaller than on your present policy, but this should not influence your decision too much. Compare the premium rate for a Modified Life policy at your present age with the rate for a term policy at ages above 50. VA Pamphlet 29-22, which provides comparative details, is available at any VA office or by writing Va.

Q -- I submitted an application to VA for dental treatment. Since I live 150 miles from the nearest VA clinic, I'm wondering if I will be required to go there for treatment.

A -- No. VA will send you an authorization, plus examination papers. Have your dentist complete the examination papers and return them to VA. After VA reviews the examination papers, you will receive additional authorization for treatment. You should not make any appointments or have any treatment until you receive this authority from VA.

As I See It

By Mel Vercoe

Little children praying in public schools? My goodness, what will be next? The Supreme Court several years ago decided that public schools were not proper places for one to declare his proper allegiance to God and, since then, religion has been legally practiced in the form of prayers in many place - at civic meetings, club meetings, in churches, in homes, on mountain tops, on radio and TV programs - but not in public schools. So now that great bastion of humanity and milk of human kindness, the Congress of the United States, is going to try to amend the Constitution so that little children will not be prohibited by law from praying to God for help in an arithmetic examination or maybe just on general principles before starting their school day.

Article 1 of the Bill of Rights made it very clear that Congress should never pass a law restricting a person from practising religion - specifically, "no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." We got around that of course by having the Supreme Court pass the law, so that Congress did not have to openly violate the Bill or Rights, but now there has been a change of heart. Maybe a prayer in a school would be better than a crime in the street outside the school, assuming that one might influence the other.

I wish the Congress luck in making this change. If it is not against the law for military chaplains to lead prayers for success in killing fellow human beings on battlefields, then it should not be against the law for a child to seek God's help in a biology test and after all, just who exactly are the experts on such a sacred thing as how or where or when or why or by whom should prayers be conducted? One of the reasons for some of the early migration to America from Europe was to get out from under suppresion of religious freedom and now, 300 years later it is time, I believe, for us to at least make a pretense of doing something about it.

If we are afraid prayers in schools might be used to poison the minds of our young or distort their political views, then I suggest we stop teaching our children that we are a democratic Republic because we are not a democratic Republic and we should stop the practice of defiling the Bible by havint it used as part of the oath of office in political inaugurals, when most of the audience knows the fellow with his hand on the Bible is lying through his teeth.

Bob Wood Reports

How many of you have had the experience of picking up the phone and having someone on the other end of the line say "Congratulations, Mrs. Smith, you've just won a free gift from Bonanza Enterprises. When shall I deliver it?"

On the hard-sell theory that a foot in the door is money in the hand, unscrupulous direct-sales promoters commonly use this "pitch" and variations of it to decieve and sell the unwary consumer. Today, however, the technique is illegal. Legislation signed into law this year specifically prohibits the practice of offering a potential customer a gift or prize for the purpose of visiting the customer's home to make a sales presentation or sales pitch, unless the intent is clearly disclosed.

Further, a second law permits the consumer to cancel a sales contract made by a door-to-door salesman within three days of the agreement, with prescribed exceptions.

How many of you have had the experience of going to the post office and thumbing through your mail and tossing out some of the third class junk and then coming across something that looks like a check or possibly some legal paper or government document only to find out it is from some collection agency sending out a letter which looks or purports to be a legal paper or government document when in fact it is not. This practice has now been declared illegal and is prohibited.

The fourth law signed in this year protects the consumer from paying for a defective product when the third party with no responsibility for the product holds the sales contract. These are minor laws and only four of the four to five thousand bills introduced in the Legislature, but their intent is to give the California consumers significant new protection from marginal business practices not before recognized and dealt with by state government.

Your Social Security

Q -- Last year, my cousin got his first job, and his employer insisted on seeing his Social Security card before he would let him start to work. Being a nice guy, I let him have mine since he had lost his card and we both go by initials only the same ones. I now know that we made a mistake, but the problem is how can we straighten this out with Social Security?

A -- The best approach is for you and your cousin to visit your nearby Social Security office. Take with you all available wage receipts or other records of employment. The Social Security people will then examine both Social Security records and make the needed corrections. They will also assure that your cousin is issued a duplicate Social Security card showing his correct number.

Q -- I became disabled and unable to work on June 10, 1970, and your 6-month waiting period ended in December; therefore your first montly payment was for January 1971. During the 6-month waiting period many people recover from their disabilities. The Social Security law does not provide payments for short-term or partial disability. It only pays for severe and prolonged disability.

Q -- Please tell me what the lump-sum burial benefit payment will be. I am past 86 now and am getting an $80 monthly check. How should we go about it, after the funeral or as soon as death?

A -- When a worker covered by social security dies, a lump-sum death benefit three times the amount of his full monthly benefit is paid, but not more than $255. In your case, it will be three times $80 or a total of $240.

The application for payment should be filed by the surviving spouse, if he or she is living and occupying the same household with you at the time of your death.

When there is no widow or widower, the person who assumes responsibility for the burial, if the expenses have not been paid, or the person who pays the burial expenses, should file the application. The application may be filed up to two years after the death of the wage earner.

Rock Lobster Africaans

6 rock lobster tails; 1/4 cup butter; 3 diced onions; 1/2 clove garlic, diced; 3 tomatoes, peeled and diced; 2 tabsp. curry powder; 1 small cinnamon stick, crushed; 1 bay leaf, crumbled; 3 cloves, crushed and 1 tsp. salt.

Drop frozen lobster tails into boiling water When water reboils, simmer for six minutes. Drain immediately and drench with cold water. Cut along each edge of underside membrane and strip off. Remove meat from shell, keeping shell intact for serving. Dice meat. Saute onions in butter. Add garlic and tomatoes. Stir in curry and remaining seasoning. Simmer slowly for 30 minutes. (If curry gets too dry, add more butter) Add salt and lobster pieces and mix thoroughly.

Put mixture into lobster shell and serve immediately.

Guten Appetit.

Criticizes Penal System

Castigating the entire California penal system as "one of the worst", not one of the best, as is usually assumed, John Irwin, ex-inmate and Associate Professor of Sociology at San Francisco State College, gave the University for Man evening Prison Seminar a preview of a forthcoming book by a working party of the America. Friends Service Committee. Irwin, himself author of a book entitled "The Felon," said the report of the working party is "due to be very controversial".

The AFSC working party, to its own surprise, Irwin said, came to the conclusion that rehabilitation was a fraud. It is a fraud he says, however, which has never deceived the inmates. The only remedy, says the working party, is to throw institution-sponsored rehabilitation out the window and frankly admit that punishment and retribution are society's goals. The group concluded that these are goalds, however, that can be fulfilled in a more humane fashion than they now are.

Further excoriating the penal system, Irwin pointed out that the police engage in selective enforcement which bears most heavily on the poor and disadvantaged, largely ignoring the well-to-do as well as most of those who commit white collar crime. He said the indeterminate sentence should be abolished and that the Adult Authority had become a political plum for police chiefs and reactionaries.

Sometimes supplying his own views, rather than those of the working party of which he is a member, Irwin placed the blame for the disorders at Soledad squarely on the shoulders of former Superintendent Fitzharris. Terming Fitzharris' conduct when he served on the Adult Authority as "absolutely unbelievable," Irwin said they had to put him in as head of Soledad in order to get him off the Adult Autherity. Before Fitzharris became Superintendent, Soledad used to be a pretty quiet place, said Irwin, who ought to know since he once did time there.

The meeting was none the less very well attended. In addition to regular seminar attenders, there were people from Black Studies, the MPC Sociology Department, Young Adults for Action and other groups. The blacks present added a lively dimension to the meeting, tangling especially with a correctional officer from Soledad.

Next Tuesday, November 2, a panel consisting of a disillusioned former Los Angeles County Sheriff's deputy and represente of the Seaside Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's office is scheduled. Later in November, panels including both local people and S. F. Bay Area people are being arranged, as well as a Human Rights Day observance for prisoners on December 11.

Change In Procedure

California's half million boat owners will receive their 1972 boat registration fee billings in early December at the same time and on the same type of punched card as their vehicle and trailer registration renewal notices.

"Boat and vehicle records are all under one roof now," says Department of Motor Vehicles Director Robert C. Cozens. "Boat records went on the DMV computer a few weeks ago and owners will have to look twice to distinguish between their auto, trailer or boat registration renewal forms.

"A boater will find it convenient to renew his boat registration at any DMV office at the same time he renews registration on the trailer it rests on and the vhicle that pulls it."

Another significant change; vessels, like vehicles, are now subject to annual renewal, with fees falling due at the same time as for vhicles. The boat renewal fee is a flat $2.00.

However, while DMV collects an in lieu property tax on vehicles the so-called license fee - which is forwarded to cities and counties, boat property taxes are still assessed directly by local government.

Learn About Tax Law

San Jose State College in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service is sponsoring a one day Tax Practitioner Institute on Saturday November 20.

Registration will start at 7:45 a.m. in the Morris Dailey Hall at the campus. Those who wish to atted are urged to contact the college since space may be limited.

There will be a fee of $15. for the class. This will cover tuition, parking, tax kit materials, coffee and luncheon. Additional information may be obtained by calling Dr. Bernard Wadell, School of Business, telephone 294-6414 ext 3154.

The institute has been designed to give tax practitioners the chance to study the many important changes made by the Revenue Act of 1969. A detailed analysis of the changes in Federal income taxation of individuals will be presented.

Four workshops of one-half hours each will be conducted in the colleges' School of Business starting at 8:30 a.m. Representatives of the IRS will present interpretations of the current tax law, rules and regulations. Participants will have an opportunity to ask questions of the panelists on specific points.

Such subjects as the Minimum Tax, Income Averaging, Pensions and Annuities, Depreciation, Capital Gains and Losses and others of interest will be covered. Mr. Raymond Harless, District Director for the Northern California IRS District, will open the institute.

10 Employees Make PG&E's Idea Club

Fifty-six employees in Pacific Gas and Electric Company's Coast Valleys Division have been paid a total of $3,095 so far this year for their constructive suggestions, division manager W. L. Murray said recently.

Ten employees have also been inducted as charter members in the new Idea Man's Club for the exceptional value of their ideas, Murray said.

PG&E's suggestion plan is one of the oldest of its kind in the West, having been started in 1924 to encourage employee participation in the company"s continuous search for greater efficiency of operations.

The select Idea Man's Club was formed this year in the company's 13 operating divisions and its San Francisco headquarters. Employees are eligible if their adopted suggestions result in annual savings by the company of $500 or more. Members are presented with a pin and certificate as well as cash award.

The newest club member is Raymond B. Ewing, apprentice electric technician at Salinas, who received a check for $555, making him one of three top winners this year.

His idea was to simplify a proposed rearrangement of switching equipment in the Salinas substation. This suggestion resulted in a saving of considerable expense that would have been required for purchase of new switch panels and wiring plus the cost of installation. It also saved floor space in the control room, making it available for future expansion.

The top award this year in the Coast Valley Division was for $735 which was shared by two Paso Robles men, Herbert R. Mauer and Joe Carminati. Their suggestion was to install uprights on cargo dollies, enabling a single dolly to carry both the heavy cable reels and equipment to underground projects. Previously, crews were required to use two trucks and trailers, one for the cable and another for the equipment.

Other members inducted into the PG&E Idea Man's Club this year and their cash awards are Andy M. Aquino, Salinas, and Louis C. Harness, Watsonville, who shared $185; William H. Powers, Freedom, $135; Lewis B. Brown, Salinas, $85; Donald G. Jenkins, Morro Bay, $80; Harold Lee Salinas and Richard L. Van Vyhe, Salinas, $45.

The Coast Valleys Division serves San Benito, Monterey and San Luis Obispo counties and northern Santa Barbara County.

1971 McDonald's All-American High School Band will appear for fifth consecutive year as featured highlight of Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, playing under direction of famed maestro Paul Lavalle, musical director of Radio City Music Hall. 101-member McDonald's All-American Band will also appear for fourth consecutive year in Tournament of Roses Pasadena on New Year's Day. Lavalle and panel of country's most distinguished band directors chose nation's top 101 high school musicians -- two from each state and one from Washington, D.C. -- for honor.

Recall Colts

Owners of 1971 Dodge Colt station wagons have been notified to return their cars to dealers for replacement of a spare tire release lever plug.

Some of the 4,685 cars being recalled also need a cable clamp to hold the parking brake cable more securely, according to a Chrysler Corporation spokesman.

Test Dates Announced

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced three test dates for 1972 summer jobs in Federal agencies.

Candidates whose applications are received by December 3, 1971, will be tested on January 8, 1972; those whose applications are received by January 7 will be tested February 12 and those whose applications are received by February 2 will be tested March 11.

Applications postmarked after February 2 will not be accepted.

Complete instructions for filing and information on opportunities available, are contained in CSC Announcement No. 414, Summer Jobs in Federal Agencies, which may be obtained from any area office of the Commission, many major post offices, most college placement offices or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. 20415.

Applicants rated eligible in 1971 need not take the written test again unless they wish to improve their scores. They will be sent a special form by December 1 to update their qualifications and indicate their availability for employment in 1972.

The Commission urged candidates to apply early for maximum consideration and emphasized that the number of jobs available through the nationwide test will be extremely small in proportion to the number of competitors. Last year, 157,485 persons were tested and only 12,600 were appointed through the nationwide CSC exam.

In addition to providing details about the types of jobs that will be filled through the nationwide test, Announcement 414 contains information on other summer jobs that will be filled through merit procedures administered by individual Federal agencies. Last year, more than 22,000 jobs were filled through such procedures.

Just fill in and return the coupon to subscribe to any of these magazines on a guaranteed basis

The multiple-language magazine that provides its own translations. Articles and features in many languages. Ideal change-of-pace for students.
1 year (12 issues) $7

A quarterly journal devoted to public affairs, science, social sciences and the humanities. Each issue deals in depth with one subject—The Embattled University, Woman in America, for example.
1 year (quarterly) $8

What goes on behind the scenes—from production to stage management to costume design. The professional journal for everyone in theatre.
1 year (12 issues) $5

Satire and parody are alive and well in this outrageous, disrespectful, irreverent, scurrilous, insolent, derisive, impudent new humor magazine.
1 year (12 issues) $5.95.

Some magazines don't try to please everybody. Instead, they try to please people with special interests. Not surprisingly, they're called "special interest" magazines. Whatever your age, occupation, geographical location, hobby, sex, field of study, avocation, pastime, intellectual tastes or religious, political or philosophical persuasion, chances are there's a special interest magazine for you, published by people who share your special interest.

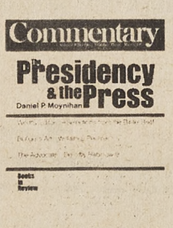
There are over 20,000 special interest publications in the U.S. today. Several of the best are presented here. You may subscribe to any one — or ones — that interest you, under the rates specified, and under this guarantee: if you're not entirely satisfied, each publisher guarantees that you may cancel at any time and receive an immediate and unquestioned refund covering the balance of your subscription.

Look over the selections carefully. Isn't there a special interest magazine here that specially interests you? One that you've been meaning to subscribe to? Now's your chance. To order, just fill in the coupon and return it. Send no money — the magazines you choose will bill you.

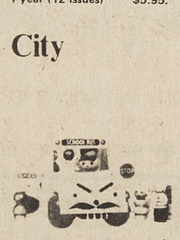
(Note: You must send payment with your order only on magazines marked *)

*An iconoclastic journal of political and social commentary including book reviews and muckraking articles. Of particular interest to college students.
8 issues $4.88

An important new magazine "dedicated to end pollution." Its weapon in the fight to save Earth: a thoughtful, compelling editorial product.
1 year (12 issues) $10



Commentary features articles by prominent authors on social issues, politics, and culture together with reviews and stories.
1 year (12 issues) $10



The magazine of urban life and environment. City is edited to serve those who are concerned about, and actively involved in, efforts to solve the nation's critical urban problems.
1 year (6 issues) $10

A journal of ethical concern which serves as a link between theoretical philosophy and applications of humanism to ethical and social problems.
*1 year (6 issues) $6

A non-partisan magazine telling the story of the most crucial period in American history with honesty, accuracy, and great readability. Generously illustrated.
*One year (10 issues) $10

This new magazine of zoology bridges the gap between technical journals and the popularized nature magazines. Full-color photography, superb writing.
*1 year (6 issues) $9

Book Sale Will Aid Montessori

A broad selection of books and records will be sold at bargain prices this Saturday November 13 at a book fair to benefit the building fund of the Montessori Children's School.

The book sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Case Estrada Adobe on Tyler Street in Monterey.

Books, magazines, records and a gift booth will be there for all to browse through. Books will be arranged by subject matter for quick and easy selection.

Books in all interest categories, including art, science, biographies, reference works and children's stories will be available. New and old, hardcover and paperback books will be sold. You may find just the book you may want to give a friend for Christmas or, if you are a student just that magazine you were looking for for your research project.

The Montessori Children's School enrolls children between ages 2-1/2 and 8 from throughout the Monterey Peninsula and Salinas. Presently operating in Carmel and Monterey, it is in the process of building a new school on Schulte Road in Carmel Valley. All classes are expected to shift to the new location in 1972.

Think no one listens? We do. We CARE. We're Free. 24 hrs. Suicide Prevention Center 373-0713.

"Tomorrow morning, wind up your razor and get a perfect shave."

"Wind up my razor?"

Shaving just became fun...

because now there is an all-new way to shave!

Not an electric razor that chops off your whiskers. Or a safety razor that scrapes off your beard. An all-new principle—the same age old concept man uses that is used every day in every cutting operation except cutting off your beard. The Stahly "Live Blade" razor looks like a safety razor. It takes any double-edged blade YOU prefer. It works with any lather YOU like. But instead of you doing the work, you wind the handle like a watch and simply steer, as 6600 strokes a minute remove whiskers right down to the chin line.

TRY IT! For 14 days in your own home. You must be convinced that it is giving you the greatest shave ever—OR NO COST! Hurry, the Stahly is a limited production item. When those allocated to this advertisement are gone, it will be "wait for next year."

It worked for us and for 1000's more...

"I want to tell you how much I am enjoying my Stahly razor. It is the best shaving instrument I have ever seen or used.
I do some teaching on T.V. and require a very close shave. With the Stahly, I get it fast and comfortably."
H. D. S, Ph.D., Pennington, New Jersey

"Find check enclosed for Stahly Razor; Magnifique! This is a revelation in shaving . . . It seems that for 39 years I have been doing it the hard way. The Stahly gives me smooth, comfortable shaves that I look forward to every day.
Sheer joy, gentlemen—sheer joy!
P. L. M, San Jose, California

"For some time I have felt that I should express my appreciation for those few products that have given me so much satisfaction or pleasure or which have contributed to making everyday tasks less burdensome. The Stahly Razor is one of them . . . It has given me complete satisfaction, first because it leaves one's face feeling truly soft and smooth, and second, it is a well made and engineered device . . . As a professional design engineer, I have often used your razor as an example of the best type of product design and manufacturing in engineering discussions."
L. W. B, Boston, Massachusetts

". . . I have been using this razor for about twenty years and still think it is the best piece of shaving equipment I have ever tried . . ."
A. H. S, Mahtomedi, Minnesota

Would you invest $30 to get a perfect shave every day for the rest of your life?

The world's finest shaving instrument ...just $29.95

A Full One-Year Warranty!
This razor is warranted for one year from the date of sale against defects in material and workmanship, during which period the company will repair the razor or, if unable to repair it, replace it . . . if found to be defective under this warranty and provided the razor is returned to us prepaid.
This warranty does not cover accidental damage or improper handling, and we assume no responsibility for repairs made or attempted by unauthorized persons. To order this [illegible] fill out the registration card with the [illegible] razor and mail it to the company.

Survival Of Blacks Is Theme

Black people are considered obsolete in America and face a real danger of extermination.

This chilling conclusion arose recently in an illuminating discussion with two Black American authors, John A. Williams and Samuel F. Yette.

Williams dealt fictionally with the theme of genocide in his book, "The Man Who Cried I Am."

Yette, a former associate editor of Ebony and director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, documented what he calls existing factors of genocide in "The Choice: The Issue of Black Survival in America."

Both articulated these views with Yette, a Washington correspondent for Newsweek, pointing to the essential aspects of genocide in our society, based on "extreme racial hostility and economic class hostility. We have the vested interests, we have those who make a profit out of repression, we have the lack of Black social value historically, and also currently we have the loss of economic value on the part of Black people."

Yette also sees a threat of genocide in "the legalization of the police state such as the no-knock search and seizure and the preventive detention bill."

Williams discussed his fictional concept of the "King Alfred Plan": the government's "final solution to the Black question -- vaporization."

The "King Alfred Plan" is the product of Williams' question: "What would any administration do in a situation when a large segment of the population was...threatening the order and the established regime?"

Since the book has been published, Williams notes that "we all know that practically every city government has announced a contingency plan for dealing with rebellion, i.e., Black people in rebellion, and not only city governments, but the federal government."

Adding credence to that is Yette's contention that a division of the Justice Department, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), "is right now building what they call regional detention facilities which, in fact, are concentration camps in virtually every state in the country. That's going on now."

Other revelations elicited by the discussion on genocide were reported to include attempts to establish mandatory sterilization for unmarried girls; the over-exposure of many Black people to doses of X-rays that can cause leukemia, cancer and sterilization; and issuance of different 1970 census questionnaires to Blacks and minorities than to the white majority.

Flanked by Congressman Ronald V. Dellums (D, Berkeley/Oakland) on her right hand and Berkeley Mayor Warren Widener on her left, Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm (D, New York) met the press in the Conference Room of Berkeley's Rainbow Sign Saturday evening, following an overflow-crowd reception at the club.

The ambition of the 98-pound representative from New York's Bedford Stuyvesand district is to become president of the United States. She is the nation's first Black Congresswoman.

Congressman Dellums said he knew when he read "Unbought and Unbossed" -- Mrs. Chisholm's book -- that he would support her candicacy for the highest office in the land. The book, now out in paperback, goes in depth into the background, the political views and the general concepts of "the mighty mite," as the diminutive lady has often been termed.

Mrs. Chisholm indicated her intention to enter several primaries, "four and possibly five," as a serious contender for the presidency. She offered herself as the viable alternative to "Tweedledum and Tweedledee." She hinted that she may run as an independent rather than as a Democrat.

To the press, Mrs. Chisholm told how she felt a woman -- being the one most in contact with young people and children--"can help to change the priorities" of the nation.

"So often, the day-to-day problems are at the lowest part of the list, such problems as family and education. I think it is that women are not there to focus on those."

Asked how she expected to mend "splits" that might develop, she replied forthrightly:

"I cannot mend splits. Some people just believe in splitting. I am attempting to put together a coalition of forces and there are people who will not permit themselves to be brought together. I am definitely moving in the direction of healing splits that were split in the beginning."

Mrs. Chisholm said she had several members of the Congressional Black Caucus "with me, and at the appropriate time, they will come forward."

'CHICAGO STRATEGY'

"Do you think you are going to upset the Chicago strategy?" was the next question by the press.

"No," she replied, "I started to move in their direction six months ago. They are trying to come up with a strategy for 1972. They are moving to come together for 1972. I am sure they will."

Congressman Dellums then said that the "favorite son strategy is not antithetical. There are some states where a favorite son candidate is not feasible."

Mrs. Chisholm did not attend the recent Chicago gathering referred to in that conversation at which about 50 Black politicians met. They are attempting to organize a Black bloc at the 1972 Democratic convention, but are reported to be divided on whether to put up one Black candidate in several presidential primaries or to put up favorite-son candidates in several states.

According to Julian Bond, a Georgia legislator, the general consensus at the Chicago meeting was for a single candidate. He said late last month that Blacks may be forced to back Mrs. Chisholm in the 1972 primaries. He said he personally favored the favorite-son approach and that he would want a consensus of the Black group before backing the New York Congresswoman. This consensus, he said, could very easily come about "by default."

WIN OR LOSE

At the Berkeley conference, Congressman Dellums spoke on the "win or lose" question.

"It is possible for Shirley Chisholm to win," he stated. "How do you know if you do not get out and try very diligently? We must not get hung up on the psychological genocide that Shirley cannot win. They said that about me."

Mrs. Chisholm termed the vote of Black women "very important." She said she was quite sure she would "get their vote, but you must also remember that I am not saying I will get all Black women's votes. You know that people have hangups; let's put it on the table. I am not running on the basis of getting 100 percent of anybody's vote. I have strength in the different coalitions of different parts of the country."

A questioner who identified himself as "an oldtimer" said:

"I think that psychologically, Black people generally speaking either think of themselves as Democrats or Republicans. There is no such thing as 'Coalition Party.' Would you please explain what coalition actually is?"

Mrs. Chisholm replied:

"Coalition is a pulling together of different forces in this society today who are discontented or disillusioned about some facet of government as it affects these people. You have a discontentment on the part of Blacks, you have a discontentment on the part of Spanish-speaking and Indian people, you have a discontentment of white women and Black women. You have a discontentment on the part of young voters who are saying that they are not going to vote for anybody. If you can take all of these persons who are registering discontent in different ways and come up with a person who can be a force to be reckoned with, you will be putting together a coalition. In my book, coalition politics is going to be a force in this country."

She pointed out that "many young voters have registered as independents and that older voters are beginning not to pay any attention to party labels per se. In New York, people are looking at candidates and issues. The party label as such is dying unless the parties are able to revitalize and change themselves in a meaningful way."

Asked whether she thought the discontent was coming from a single source, Mrs. Chisholm replied in the negative.

"It comes from the repeated failure of people to get different aspects of the government to be responsive to their needs. Taxes keep going up. Young people demand to participate. The discontent is registered on many different levels in our society. I think you see it all around. They cannot predict elections in their communities any longer. I think that is a wonderful example."

BACKGROUND

Asked the question, "Who is Shirley Chisholm?" the Congresswoman replied with a smile:

"Didn't you read my book? I have three of them."

She then gave the biographical facts of Shirley Chisholm, "a 46-year-old former schoolteacher, born in the Bedford Stuyvesant section of West Indian parents, the mother from Barbados and the father from Guyana."

She said she had lived in the West Indies until the age of 11, which accounts for the trace of an accent still remaining in her speech.

"In 1968, I ran for United States Congress, successfully," said Mrs. Chisholm.

She has been married "for 22 years to a wonderful man, Conrad Chisholm, who is non-political although he comes from a political family in the island of Jamaica."

Aileen Hernandez, former national president of the National Organization of Women (NOW) and co-chairlady of Women Organized for Political Action (WOPA), then evoked a happy ending to the conference when she commented aloud:

"Behind every great woman stands a great man!"

"I would not have it any other way," observed attorney Clinton White who was sitting in on the conference.

On her whirlwind two-day series of appearance in the bay area, the New York Congresswoman assisted in fundraising for Congressman Dellums, with whom she held a press conference at the San Francisco International Airport at noon on Saturday.

She then met with bay area politicos at a no-host luncheon at the Jack Tar Hotel in San Francisco, followed by a speech there to the National Tenants' Organization.

On Sunday, her busy schedule included speaking at Glide Memorial Methodist Church in San Francisco and a brunch at the Afro-American Cultural Center in San Francisco, sponsored by Delta Sigma Theta Sorority as a fundraiser for Congressman Dellums.

ing the League's affirmative stance on the hiring policy proposed, Mrs. William Otami said that while 16.5 percent of the full-time municipal employees in Richmond were from minority groups, in the fire and police departments the disparity was "glaring." Out of 202 members of the police department, there are only 16 Black officers, she reported.

Among 150 firemen, the fire department had only six minority members, she said.

Mrs. Helen Cruthers of NCDH termed Councilman Anderson's hiring proposal "a working tool" and "more than just rhetoric."

She reported that in the opinion of NCDH, Richmond is one of four bay area cities in dire need of a strong affirmative action program.

New Device Lifts Wheelchair Into Car

Many physically handicapped motorists in California and throughout the nation can become more independent in their travel because of a device that has been developed by the California State Department of Rehabilitation. It is an assistive device that lifts a handicapped driver's wheelchair into or out of his car.

The loader was developed by Charles P. Eckles, workshop consultant to the State Department of Rehabilitation in Los Angeles, following specifications prescribed by A.G. Garris, an assistive device specialist in the department. Garris and Eckles have teamed together for years in developing assistive devices that have helped to rehabilitate many seriously handicapped persons into employment.

"This is a much needed device for persons using wheelchairs who can get into a car and drive but can't get their wheelchairs into the car with them," Garris explained. "It is also a boon to many older persons who drive and now have to use wheelchairs. Without help, their freedom of independent travel is greatly restricted."

Ordinarily a handicapped person wheels himself to the car, opens the door and swings himself on to the front seat. The problem is for him to lead the wheelchair into the back seat of the car. Here is where the device of Garris and Eckles becomes the handicapped person's helper.

The loader is driven by a small electric motor controlled by a two-way switch on an extension cord to the driver's seat. Power is furnished by the car's battery. A horizontal lifting arm extends out from the side of the car and under the seat of the wheelchair. As the lifting arm rises, it collapses the wheelchair and raises it off the ground at the same time. The entire loader is mounted on rollers in a track extending across the floor behind the front seat. When the wheelchair is raised to the proper height, the handicapped driver pulls the loader and the wheelchair into the car.

To unload the wheelchair the process is reversed. As the wheelchair is lowered, the holding arm retracts from under the seat of the wheelchair. When the wheelchair is disengaged, the handicapped driver swings himself from the car into the wheelchair and then pushes the device back into the car and shuts the door.

The loader attaches simply to the inside of the car with only four bolts. Garris estimates the cost will vary from about $150, without installation, to about $250, installed. He warns, however, "The loader is designed principally to fit in a number of full size, two-door cars but not in the smaller compacts."

A free sketch of the device is available upon request from A.G. Garris, State Department of Rehabilitation, 1494 South Robertson Boulevard, Los Angeles Ca 90053.

Census Data Reveals Black Political Potential

Data released by the Bureau of the Census in Washington indicates the immense potential political power of blacks in the South and in many of the nation's largest Northern cities.

The latest findings, drawn from the 1970 census, show that of 102 counties in the country that are at least 50 percent black, all are located in 11 states in the South--Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Gerogia, Tennessee, Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

In addition, the total number of cities in which the black population is over 50 percent has risen from three in 1960 to 15 in 1970. They are almost evenly divided between the North and the South.

The three cities 10 years ago were Washington D.C., Charleston, South Carolina, and Bessemer, Alabama.

The 15 now and their percentages of black population are Willow Brook in Los Angeles County, 82.3 percent; Washington, 71.1; East St. Louis, Illinois, 69.1; East Cleveland, Ohio, 58.6; Florence, veland, Ohio, 58.6; Florence-Graham, Los Angeles county, 56; Highland Park, Michigan, 55.3; Petersburg, Virginia, 55.2; Newark, New Jersey, 54.2; East Orange, New Jersey, 53.1; Gary, Indiana, 52.8; Bessemer, Alabama, 52.2; Greenville, Mississippi, 52; Atlanta, Georgia, 51.3; and Pritchard, Alabama, 50.5.

A census official said, "The political potential for blacks is tremendous." That potential can already be seen in the fact that more than 200 blacks are now running for office in Mississippi.

While Washington and Atlanta are the largest American cities with over 50 percent black populations, others with high percentages include Baltimore, Maryland, 46.4; New Orleans, Louisiana, 45; Detroit, Michigan, 43.7; St. Louis, Missouri, 40.9, and Cleveland, Ohio, 38.3.

In sheer numbers of blacks, rather than percentages of the total population, New York City still leads with over 1.5 million, or 21.2 percent. Chicago follows with 1.1 million, or 32.7 percent. Detroit replaced Philadelphia for third place with 660,428 to Philadelphia's 653,791.

The absence of Charleston, South Carolina, from the list of predominantly black cities is indicative of the migration of blacks from the South. That city was 50.8 percent back in 1960. Today it is only 45.2 percent black.

Will UCLA Win Again?

John Wooden, coach of UCLA's basketball team -- winner of five straight championships -- started practice this year on his 61st birthday, but said he didn't think his 1971-72 team should be "favored for another championship."

He said he expected to "have a good team, perhaps very good by the end of the season. But I would say that it's probably a year away from being great."

Agreeing with a preseason poll that rated the University of Southern California's Trojans as the No. 1 team, he said he considered them "the logical choice."

Wooden posed for photographs during opening practice with Henry Bibby, the senior guard and the only returning regular from last season's champions, while discussing the makeup of the new team.

Wooden is counting on Bill Walton, 6'11" to fill the center post. The San Diegan averaged 18 points and 20 rebounds a game to lead the undefeated UCLA freshman team to 20 victories.

Other team members, according to Wooden, are likely to be Keith Wilkens, 6'7" and Larry Farmer, 6'6" as forwards and Greg Lee, 6'5" with 6'1" Bibby as guards.

Wooden said he would "take this group as a whole over the freshman team Lewis (Alcindor) played on." He said Walton "has the potential to become a superstar."

Black Dealers File $35 Million Suit

A class action suit for $35 million was recently filed in Los Angeles against Humble Oil and Refining Company, Mobil Oil Corporation, Shell Oil, Atlantic-Richfield, Standard Oil Company of California, Hancock Oil Company, Phillips Petroleum, Signal Oil and Gas Company and Texaco Inc., on behalf of a group of Black Humble Oil station operators, joined by several representatives of general consumers, alleging "price fixing and other violations the Sherman Anti-Trust Act."

The suit was filed by attorney Henry W. Sands, who said at a press conference that 27 Enco dealers and station managers had shut down their stations for a 24-hour period in August, in protest of Humble's operations and policies, which they charged were unfair and discriminatory.

The group, unable to get a favorable response according to Sands, then proceeded to form an alliance with the local chapter of Operation Breadbasket, carrying the action to Humble service centers.

On one occasion, Breadbasket's Jesse Boyd was arrested for blocking passage at one of the centers which the group picketed.

The protesting operators have formed an organization called Black Petroleum Retailers, Inc., appointing a five-man committee to handle its direction.

Bazaar Is Planned

This Saturday, November 13, at 5 p.m., The Salvation Army Women's Home League is having a County Fair.

This year the women are providing various items for all, which can be purchased at bargain prices.

The bazaar will also consist of a complete Spaghetti dinner (dessert included) for the small sum of $1.25 for adults and 50¢ for children under 12.
